Spring 2006 Household Chemical Collection Events
FREE to Saint Louis County Residents!

As you get into your spring cleaning, remember that improper disposal of leftover household chemicals can be especially harmful to the environment and pose a risk to public health.

The best way to properly manage leftover household chemicals is to use it up or give it to someone else to use up. Depending on the age and usefulness of the leftover products, you may be able to share with friends, neighbors, or family members.

Another idea is to donate products in good condition to local organizations (church groups, housing agencies, municipal facilities, non-profits, etc.). Some materials (motor oil, certain batteries, etc.) can be recycled locally. Check the Saint Louis County Health Department website at www.stlouisco.com/doh/waste/waste_mg.html for a listing of local recycling outlets and other toxicity reduction information.

Not all leftovers can be shared or recycled. As a safe alternative to throwing away your leftover chemicals, bring them to one of the following collection events. Proof of residency, such as a driver's license or tax bill, will be required. These events are for Saint Louis County residents ONLY. Businesses are prohibited by law from participating.
